THE NEW SHORT ROUTE—GREAT EAST and WEST TRUNK LINE

THE ROOSEVELT HIGHWAY of Pennsylvania (as printed on the reverse) combined with the route outlined above offers motor travelers the most natural route between the East and the West—shorter by many miles than any other route. It traverses scenic sections through Northern Pennsylvania, New York State and New England not found on any other route of equal distance. The road construction throughout the entire length, is in keeping with its other attractions—nearly 350 miles of new concrete in Pennsylvania alone.

This Great East and West concrete route is a bee-line between Cleveland and Boston. It crosses the Hudson River over the Bear Mountain Bridge in the vicinity of Scenic Storm King Highway. It runs through the picturesque hills of Westchester County. Through the Scenic Naugatuck Valley and over Connecticut's wonderful highways, thence over Massachusetts' greatest trunk line to Boston. Throughout its entire length one is impressed with the absence of congestion—it is a fast route, yet it offers a wealth of scenery not found elsewhere.

Go East or West over this new Trunk Line for a never-to-be-forgotten journey.
